WHEN I took these Considerations on the Propriety of requiring a Subscription to Articles of Faith in Hand, I found myself in the Entrance promised great things. I was told that several able Writers, who had engaged in this Cause, were even yet hardly got in sight of the main Question, and that those original Maxims, which ought to direct all such Enquiries, had long been, and were still, either too little understood, or too much disregarded. And we are promised to have these Maxims revived, and farther explained, and the whole set in a proper Light. But in the sequel I found myself much disappointed; I could find nothing new advanced, but only old Objections, which have been often answered, revived, with little or no Notice taken of those Answers.

ENDING

The Question proposed is the Propriety of requiring a Subscription to Articles of Faith. The Affirmative Side of the Question has been maintained by several able Writers. Of these our Author takes no Notice: and very little has he to say in Reply to their Arguments. The Argument indeed seems to lie in a narrow Compass. If it is necessary that those who are to be ordained Teachers in the Church, should be sound in the Faith, and that they should give to those who ordain them some Proof, and Assurance, that they are so; and if it is more expedient, more easy to the Person ordaining, more fair with regard to the Candidate for Orders, and more effectual to the Purpose of keeping out of the Church false and erroneous Teachers, that the Method of this Proof should be settled by publick Authority, then a Subscription to some Articles of Faith cannot be improper, or inexpedient. But, if this Author can shew that Soundness in the Faith is no necessary Qualification in a Christian Teacher; or that a Bishop ought to ordain all who offer themselves, without any Enquiry into their religious Tenets: or, lastly, that this ought to be left to the arbitrary Discretion of the Bishop, and that the Church

Church has no Concern, nor Authority, to interfere, then we must own the Impropriety of such Subscription. But instead of this he seems towards the Close of this Pamphlet to have in a manner given up this main Point<sup>a</sup>. In answer to a common Plea that all Sorts of pestilent Heresies might be taught in pubick, if no such Restraint as this were laid upon the Teachers, he replies---Let those, who are entrusted with the Power of admitting Persons to be Teachers, carefully enquire into their Qualifications, and, according to the best of their Judgment, reject such as they find either grossly ignorant of the general Principles of Religion, or whom they have just reason to suspect of a just determined Resolution to contemn them.---- I should look upon this as a fair Concession : but it is so loosely, and ambiguously, worded, that I know not what to make of it. What does he mean by the general Principles of Religion? and what Religion, Natural, or Revealed? According to the most obvious Sense of the Words, every one is to be admitted to the Office of a Teacher, but only an Atheist, who is ignorant of, or disbelieves the Being, or Providence of God. But I hope our Author means the Christian Religion. What then are we to understand by the gene- ral Principles of this Religion. Perhaps, only <sup>a</sup> a general Profession of their Faith in Christ, though they believe not one Doctrine which he taught. Or perhaps he means an Acknowledgement of the Truth of Scripture. And this again is a Test that will admit Popish Priests, and all the wildest Sectaries, into our Ministry: for all these pretend to found their Doctrines on Scripture. An excellent Method this of guarding against pestilent Heresies, by such an Enquiry, as will exclude none of them.

Our Author begins with an Account of the Rise and Progress of a Custom, which, as he tells us, seems to place certain Explications of supposed Scriptures on the same foot with Scriptures themselves, viz. Creeds, and Confessions. And for what he advances we are to take his Word: for he has given us no Manner of Proof. It will appear that the Reverse of what he has here advanced is true. These Subtilties of metaphysical Debate were not introduced by the Governors of the Church, but by the several Hereticks of those Times <sup>b</sup>.

<sup>b</sup> This is the Account given us by Irenæus, l. 1. c. 1. f. 20. & c. 2. In him also we may see a particular Account of these Hereticks, and their Subtilties. Amongst them we find Cerinthus

And Creeeds, and Confessions of Faith, were from the Beginning found necessary to guard

thus, and others, who denied our Blessed Saviour's Divinity. See also Bingham's Antiquities, l. x. c. 3 & 4. l. xvi. c. 1. f. 1. Critical Hist. of the Apostles Creed. ch. 1.

We are told in a Note that a Creed ought to be very clear and intelligible to all Persons: and that the Terms of Christian Communion should likewise be as general, and comprehensive, as it is possible. But how we are to make a Creed, in which all Parties shall agree: or frame a Liturgy, wherein all Sects of Christians might join, I cannot easily comprehend: How shall they, who worship Jesus Christ, and honour him as God, join in the same Liturgy, with those who deny his Divinity, and esteem his Worship no better than Idolatry? The good Man might as well carry his Scheme of Comprehension a little farther. Mr Pope has given us an Universal Prayer. Might not we on the same Plan frame an Universal Liturgy, wherein not only all Sects of Christians, but all Jews, Turks, and Infidels, as well as Hereticks, might join? And yet, I am afraid, even this would not take all in. The whole Body of our Dissenters would still be excluded: for they all, I think, declare against pre-conceived Forms of Prayer.

In the same Note, though our Author had just before told us that he had no Design of entering into the subject matter of our Articles, he seems to plead only for some Relaxation from the present Mode of Subscribing, and complains of our Articles, as entailing a whole System on us at once. And then he proceeds to calculate how many Propositions there are in these Articles, I wish he would take the same Pains to calculate how many Propositions are contained in the First Chapter of St. John's Gospel. There are no less than three in the first Verse. And yet they are all necessary Truths.

against their Evasions : nor were any Persons admitted to Baptism without making Profession of the primary Articles of the Christian Faith. And, as Heresies multiplied, and new, and unscriptural Doctrines were invented, the Church judged it necessary to guard against their Misconstructions of Scripture<sup>a</sup>. This Writer has put us in mind that even in the Apostles Times there were those who corrupted the Word of God, and handled it deceitfully. Some such Provision therefore seems to have been necessary to guard against these deceitful Workers. So far indeed we are agreed that this Power of the Church may be, and has been, abused. In Process of Time Corruptions stole in, both in Practice, and Faith. And as the Church of Rome thought fit to establish these Corruptions, it became necessary to separate from her Communion. But how did the first Reformers do this ? not by abolishing all Creeeds, and Confessions. No, they found it necessary to draw up Confessions of their own. As some, who set up for Reformers, had broached many erroneous, and pestilent Doctrines ; the Lutherans first, and after their Example other Protestant Churches, thought fit to draw up Confessions of their Faith. And this they did, partly, to acquit themselves of the Scandal of abetting wild and seditious Enthusiasts, and declaring what were their real Doctrines: partly, to prevent such Enthusiasts on the one Hand, and Popish Emissaries on the other, from intruding themselves into their Ministry. Nor was there (as far as I can find) ever any Church, ever since the Apostles Times, either before, or after, the Reformation, but what had some Creed, or Confession of Faith. The Lutherans, the Calvinists, the Remonstrants, and even the Socinians, as well as our Church, had their Forms of Doctrine, and did not acknowledge such as their Brethren, who would not prefer their Belief of them. Nor is it easy to conceive a Church under any other Notion, but as a Body of Men professing some common Form of Doctrine, and joining in some common form of Worship.

<sup>a</sup> But we are told that these good Men were not aware how little agreeable this part of their Conduct might prove to the Principles they first set out upon: which were that the Holy Scripture was our only Standard both of Faith, and Practice; and that its Meaning was to be ascertained to us by our own Reason. But this

Inconsistency should not only have been asserted, but proved. They did not set up their Confessions, as Standards of Faith, nor impose them on Men's Consciences as such. They desired every Man to search the Scriptures, and judge for himself. But though they did not assume a Power over Men's Consciences, nor deny them the Liberty of private Judgment, yet they thought that they had Authority to enjoin a publick Profession of what they judged to be necessary Articles of Faith, as a Condition of external Communion.

But this, it seems, was one of the chief Causes of the Division, and Distresses, which we read of in ecclesiastical Story.---Our Author, I suppose, thinks that such Divisions, and Disturbances, were not owing to the perverse disputings of Hereticks, and Schismaticks, but to the Governors of the Church, who held fast the Form of sound Words. And possibly too he may think that Insurrections, and Rebellions in the State, are not owing to the Unruliness of factious Subjects, but to Kings, and Rulers. But most reasonable Men, I believe, will think otherwise. Our Author refers us here for Proof to Curcellæus, and Limborch. These Men might have but too much Reason to complain of the Impositions of the Romish Church, and those of their own Countrymen at home. But they were both Remonstrants, and had given their Assent to, and wrote in Defence of, the Remonstrants Confession of Faith. This Confession was published with a Preface, wherein are answered the Objections usually urged against such Confessions. They are the same with those brought here by our Author,---that they detract from the Authority of Scripture--- that they offend Men's Consciences, and hinder the Liberty of Prophecying,--- that they occasion Divisions, and Factions,--- I refer him to this Preface for an Answer to every thing he has here alledged<sup>a</sup>.

After all, what is all this to the Purpose? The Question proposed is the Propriety of requiring of Persons to be ordained a Subscription to Articles of Religion. But he has hitherto been arguing against Creeds, and Confessions of Faith, required of all Men as Terms of Communion. We are hardly yet got in sight of the main Question. If we shorten our Creeds, new frame our Liturgies, and make our

of Communion so general, and comprehensive, as to take in all Sects of Christians, yet still it may be necessary to take Care that this mixed Multitude may be well taught, and for that Purpose provided with proper Teachers<sup>a</sup>, who may be able by sound Doctrine, both to exhort, and to convince the Gainsayers.

But now we seem to be coming to the main Point<sup>b</sup>. We are told that all Kinds of Engagements declarative of our full and final Persuasion in Matters of Faith---are wholly founded on Principles directly opposite to those abovementioned, (I suppose) that Scripture is the Standard of Faith, and that its Meaning is to be ascertained to us by our own Reason.--- But we do not set up our Articles as a Rule of Faith. Nay these very Articles declare that<sup>c</sup> nothing is to be required of any Man to be believed as an Article of Faith, that is not read in Scripture, or may be proved thereby: and that<sup>d</sup> besides the same the Church ought not to enforce any thing to be believed for necessity of Salvation. Nor do we deprive any one of his Right of private Judgment. The Candidate for Orders might judge for himself, before he offered himself, and so he may after Ordination. It is a very unfair

State of the Case to call our Subscription a Declaration of our full, and final, Persuasion, in Matters of Faith. No Man is hereby tied up from impartially examining the Word of God, nor from altering his Opinion, if he finds Reason so to do. <sup>a</sup> We are told indeed (how truly I know not) that the Church of Scotland requires her Ministers to promise to adhere to the same Persuasion to thier Life's End. I am sure our Church requires no such thing. But I cannot see what Obligation lies on a Teacher, who on his Examination alters his Opinion, openly to maintain his new Opinion. Will this Writer say that every Teacher of the Gospel is bound to maintain all Truths, and combat all Errors, in all Cases, and at all Seasons? If he does, he must allow the Governours of the Church the same Right of Judgment, and the same Zeal for Truth. And if so, they may think themselves obliged to forbid, and restrain, such Person from venting his novel Opinions, as their Minister.

But we are told that the Judgment of most thinking Men will be always in a progressive State.---So indeed we find. These thinking Men will one Year preach up the Divinity of our Blessed Saviour ; the next Year they will explain it away ; soon after, growing still wiser, they will teach their Flock that he is a mere Man, and no Worship due to him : at last, they will give them to understand, that the Apostles Creed is erroneous. I fear that while the Teachers Understanding is in a progressive State, his Congregation will be in a retrograde State, with regard both to Faith, and Morals. And I humbly think that in such Cases these thinking Men, if they choose to retain their Preferments, should keep their Opinions to themselves<sup>a</sup>.

<sup>b</sup> What follows is mere Declamation. Our Church preaches no other Gospel than that which she received, nor propounds any other Articles for Gospel, nor fixes any Standards or Criteria of Faith separate from this Gospel : and so she has fully declared. She claims indeed Authority in Controversies of Faith : but only so far as to judge for herself what shall be her own Terms of Communion, and what Qualifications she shall require in her own Ministers. Nor does our Church herein claim any other

Authority (as has already been shewn) than what all Christian Churches, ancient and modern, Protestant as well as Popish, have always claimed, and exercised. Nor is this Claim any way inconsistent with the Right of private Judgment, or Liberty of free Enquiry. But we are told that <sup>a</sup> this Spirit of imposing, stiled the Mystery of Iniquity, began to work as early, as the Apostles Times. But who were these Imposers? Not the Governors of the Church <sup>b</sup>: but vain Talkers, and Deceivers, who set themselves up in Opposition those Governors. These were the Persons the Apostle forewarns us against, as <sup>c</sup> corrupting the Word of God, and handling it deceitfully. If any such should arise amongst us, I should think, and so did St Paul, <sup>d</sup> that it concerns the Governours of the Church to stop their Mouths.

But we now seem to be coming to the main Question <sup>e</sup>. We are told that with regard to the Right of requiring Subscription deduced from the Nature of a Society, as such, which Writers on that side generally set out with, it rests entirely on this Argument, or Assertion, viz. that *the Church, like other Societies, has a Power to prescribe its own Terms of Admittance, &c.---To this it is answered that this Society is something more than a mere human Establishment---and that the Terms of Admittance into this Society are fixed by the very Authority that constituted the Society itself. And here three or four Texts of Scripture are brought to prove that we are bound to receive all Persons into this Society on a general Profession of their Faith in Christ. But here again the Question is changed upon us. The thing to be proved was the Impropriety of requiring Subscription of Persons to be ordained. And to prove this he tells us that the Apostles admitted Persons to Baptism on a general Profession of their Faith in Christ. Queen Candace's Eunuch and Cornelius the Centurion were indeed baptized: but they were not ordained Priests, or Deacons. Nor do his Instances prove even the Non-necessity of Baptismal Professions<sup>a</sup>. Philip, before he baptized the Eunuch, had preached unto him Jesus, and taught him from Is. liiii. the Doctrine of Redemption by Christ: and the Eunuch by his Profession of Faith in Jesus Christ, must be understood to give his Assent to the Doctrines preached to him. Cornelius's*

Case was an extraordinary one<sup>a</sup>. While St Peter was preaching to him, the Holy Ghost fell upon all them which heard the Word. Whereupon Peter answered---Can any Man forbid Water that these should not be baptized, which have received the Holy Ghost as well as we. And he commanded him to be baptized in the Name of the Lord.---This can be no Rule what is to be done in ordinary Cases. His last Text of Scripture is still less to his Purpose<sup>b</sup>. There arose a Dissension, and Disputation, among the Christians at Antioch, about the Necessity of the Mosaical Law. This Question was determined in a Council of the Apostles and Elders at Jerusalem, who gave Sentence that no greater Burden should be laid upon the Gentile Converts than some few necessary Points of Practice. And what is this to the Case of Creeds, or Subscriptions. This Passage should rather seem to prove the Authority of the Church, both to prevent the teaching of false Doctrines, and to ordain Rites, and Ceremonies.

I know that it has been asserted by some Writers of Note, that the only necessary Article of Faith is that Jesus is the Messiah: and these Texts, which our Author has produced, and some others, have been brought in proof of it. But I should be glad to know what they mean by this Term---Messiah.--- If they mean only a Prophet sent by God, then this Assertion amounts to this, that it is necessary to believe Jesus to be a true Prophet, and yet not necessary to believe any one Doctrine which he taught. But if by--the Messiah--they mean, as they should mean, the Only-begotten Son of God, anointed, and sent by the Father, to make Propitiation for the Sins of the World, this will include all the Fundamental Articles of the Christian Faith. Nor can any Argument be drawn from the Practice of the Apostles. At the first Publication of the Gospel God bore Witness to it with Signs and Wonders. Those who were convinced by these Miracles, and believed the divine Mission of the Apostles, and thereupon submitted to be taught by them, might perhaps be baptized, and received into the Church, without any farther Profession. But this would be no Rule to succeeding Ages. And even in the Apostles Days we find that Teaching generally preceded Baptism<sup>a</sup>. So it was in the Case of Queen Candace's Eunuch. It has been already shewn that Creeeds and Confessions of Faith

<sup>a</sup> See also Acts viii. 12. x. 34. xvi. 14. 32, 33. xviii. 8.

were in Use in the first Ages of the Christian Church, and were required of Persons to be baptized<sup>y</sup>. This Practice is said by the most ancient Writers to be derived from the Apostles themselves. The Apostles Creed, which we now have, though the whole of it was not composed by the Apostles themselves, yet was formed upon their Plan; and the greatest Part of it either composed, or authorized, by the Apostles, as may be seen in the Writers cited underneath<sup>z</sup>. In the Primitive Church no adult Persons were baptized without previous Instruction. <sup>a</sup> They continued some Time in the State of Catechumens, when they were instructed in the Doctrines of Christianity, and taught their Creed; and when they were admitted to Baptism, they made publick and solemn Profession of their Faith, in the Words of the Creed appointed by the Church <sup>b</sup>. And when Children baptized, they had Sponsors who answered for them.

The like Care was from the Beginning taken to keep false Teachers out of the Church. <sup>c</sup> St. Paul directs Timothy to commit those Things which he had heard to faithful Men, who should be able to teach others also: <sup>d</sup> and to ordain such Deacons only as held the Mystery of the Faith in a pure Conscience. <sup>e</sup> And he commissions Titus to ordain such Elders in every City as held fast the faithful Word, as they had been taught, that they might be able, by sound Doctrine, both to exhort and to convince the Gainsayers. And he commands him to stop the Mouths of vain Talkers and Deceivers; and to reject, after the first and second Admonition, a Man that is an Heretick. <sup>f</sup> And in the Primitive Church the greatest Care was taken to preserve the Unity of the Faith. Strict Enquiry was made into the Faith and Orthodoxy of all Persons to be ordained: and they were required to give in a Form of Confession of their Faith subscribed with own Hand; and those who taught any heretical Opinions were censured, and cast out out of the Church.

I am glad, however, that our Author allows the Church to be a Society. As to the Terms of Admittance, I refer him to the original Charter <sup>h</sup>, which commissions the Apostles to receive Disciples into the Church, by baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. I think it may be from hence reasonably concluded, that Persons baptized should make Profession of their Faith in the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost; and that Persons appointed to be Teachers should be found in this Faith, and able to instruct others in the Nature and Offices of these Three Divine Persons.

But here we lose Sight of the Question again; <sup>i</sup> and a new one is introduced in its stead, with regard to the Civil Sanctions of Religion. It seems Men must not only not be compelled, but must not be tempted to de- clare their Assent to what they cannot believe. The Magistrate therefore must not establish what he thinks the true Religion; must annex no Rewards to it's Professors. There must be no Tythes, no rich Benefices, no Dignities or Bishopricks; for these are tempting Things, and may hazard the Probity of his Subjects. Or, if he allots any Maintenance to the Teachers of Religion, he must admit all Persons indiscriminately, Papists, and all the wildest Sectaries, who hold Principles subversive of the Foundation of what he thinks the true Religion<sup>k</sup>. Whether this will contribute to secure either the Peace, or the Probity, of the People, let any reasonable Men judge. I must desire to be excused from following our Author any farther out of the Way. The Authority of the Magistrate in Matters of Religion, the Reasonableness of Toleration, and under what Restrictions it may or may not be granted, are Points of some Difficulty, and cannot be properly treated of in a narrow Compass. And as they are foreign to the present Question, so I have neither Inclination, nor Leisure, to enter into the Discussion of them; and therefore I refer to the excellent Dr. Rogers, who has fully handled these Subjects.

But I cannot forbear asking our Author what he means by <sup>1</sup> Pains and Penalties, and wholesome Severities? and what, and who he complains of? Does our Church or our Government <sup>m</sup> (to use the Words of the worthy Dean of Glocester) inflict any corporal Punishment, or levy any Fines and Penalties, on those who will not comply with the Terms of her Communion? No. Doth it deny them the Right of Privilege of worshipping God in their own Way? No: a Toleration is granted them on reasonable Terms. Are Men denied the Liberty of free Debate? No; nothing is punishable by our Laws but open Blasphemy and Profaneness, and publickly impugning the most fundamental Articles of our Religion; and even these Laws are scarce ever put in Execution. Men speak, and write, just what they please, with Impunity. What then do they complain of? Why, that they have none of those Emoluments allotted to the Teachers of the established Religion, which

they wish to enjoy without complying with the Terms required; and load the Church, and Government, with Abuse for not gratifying them in their extravagant Demands.

I meet with nothing to the Purpose till p. 21. where we are told, that such doctrinal Formularies exclude none but conscientious Men from any particular Communion: they create no Difficulty to others, who subscribe them as Things of Course; and in the like Circumstances will subscribe any thing.---I would desire our Author, instead of doctrinal Formalities, to read Oaths, and then see how his Argument would run. The Government must require no Oaths of Allegiance, or Supremacy, of Persons to be admitted to Posts of Honour or Profit; for these will exclude none but conscientious Men: others will take them as things of course, and will swear to any thing. But who are these others, who subscribe the Articles as Things of Course? He would not, I hope, suggest that the Bulk of the Clergy do so. I am well persuaded that the Generality of the Clergy, when they offer themselves for Ordination, consider seriously what Office they take upon them, and firmly believe what they subscribe to. If by this means some conscientious Persons

sons are excluded, we are sorry for it: but we esteem those only fit to be admitted into the Ministry, who hold the Faith, as well as a good Conscience. If unworthy Men, who know not, or care not, what they subscribe, by this Means get into the Ministry, they would not be excluded, if we were to abolish all Subscription. If others subscribe against the Dictates of their Conscience, and afterwards think themselves at Liberty to bear their Testimony against what they have thus solemnly declared their Assent to, it is their Fault alone. If the best Method which could be thought of to avoid Diversities of Opinions, and establish Consent touching true Religion, may, through the Perverseness and Corruption of Mankind, have had a contrary Effect; surely not the Church, but such Men alone are to blame.

<sup>n</sup> But our Church, it is said, at first proceeded on the most extensive Plan.---And pray when has she altered it? We have the same Articles of Subscription now as we had in Queen Elizabeth's Time. The royal Declaration afterwards prefixed to it, added nothing to them, but only approved and confirmed what had been always the true Intent of subscribing. I am no way concerned to vindicate every Expression in this Declaration. It may be sufficient to observe, that there are some Errors expressly condemned in our Articles. and some Doctrines clearly and positively asserted. In these it was the Intention of the Compilers to establish Consent; nor were these to be drawn aside to any new Sense by forced Constructions. In other more curious Points they purposely worded the Articles in general Terms, allowing Persons agreeing in the general Sense to differ in the particular Explanation of it.

° Our Author comes now at last to answer the Pleas offered in Support of this Practice of Subscription. One of these, he says, is drawn from the sacred Writings being capable of such a Variety of Senses, that Men of widely different Persuasions shelter themselves under the same Forms of Expression. It would surely have been more fair to have given us the Words of some of these Advocates for Subscription. Let us then take their Plea in their own Terms.---<sup>p</sup> We acknowledge (says one of them) the Scriptures to be sufficiently clear in all Matters necessary to Salvation: but what if Men wrest these Scriptures? explain away the plainest Texts of Scripture, and pretend to prove the most erroneous and pernicious Doctrines from Scripture? Are such Men to be entrusted with the Ministry of the Gospel, and commissioned to teach these erroneous Doctrines? What then is to be done in this Case? I know of no better Way of Security against such Deceivers, than by drawing up Articles explaining such Scriptures as these Men have perverted, and guarding against their Misconstructions. If this is not allowed, we can have no Fence to prevent Popish Emissaries, or any false Teachers whatsoever, from thrusting themselves into the Ministry.

And what has our Author to say in Answer to this? First, he queries whether the Scriptures are in Reality so differently interpreted in Points of real Consequence. But the same Writer has shewn that they are, and instanced in the first Chapter of St. John's Gospel. But we must not take this for granted, and make ourselves sole Judges of this Consequence. So far only does the Church make herself Judge, as to judge what Doctrines are fit to be taught, and what Securities are to be required of those whom she admits into her Ministry. And in this the Governors of the Church have the same Right to judge as all other Persons have to judge for themselves, and to act accordingly. But their Expositions, we are told, will at length become equally difficult to be expounded. If they should, the Church has Power to alter and explain them when she judges it necessary or expedient.

¶ Another Plea our Author mentions of the same Kind is, that all Sorts of pestilent Heresies might be taught in publick, if no such Restraint as this were laid upon the Teachers.

¶ His Reply to this has been already considered. It is indeed a fair Concession that pestilent Heresies ought to be guarded against, and that to this End some Enquiry ought to be made into the Principles of those who are to be appointed Teachers. What then would he give us in the Room of Subscription? --- The Church may, if she thinks fit, supply her Clergy with proper Comments on Scripture, or Homilies properly adapted to their own Times, and, if you please, with Articles of Religion also. --- Very well. But of what Authority are these Comments, Homilies and

Articles to be? Here we are rather in the Dark. It should seem by what follows, that they are only for the Edification of these her Sons, as meet Helps and Directions for the more effectual Discharge of their Ministry. How then will you hinder pestilent Heresies being taught in publick, if you admit Persons into your Ministry, who neither approve of your Comments, nor believe your Articles, and suffer them afterwards to write and preach against all or any of them? But it seems, Preachers are to be made liable to Censure for Impieties, when uttered by them, but not bound beforehand to such a Clog of Precautions. But here again he shelters himself under general Words. What does he mean by Impieties? And who is to be judge what are Impieties, and what Censure is to be passed upon them. You put Comments on Scripture, and Articles of Religion, into your Teachers Hands. Is he obliged to explain the Scriptures in Conformity to these Comments? and to teach such Doctrines as are set forth in these Articles, and no other? If he is, how should we be in a better Case than we are at present? It should seem rather worse; for we should be tied down by Comments as well as Articles. Supposing then that any of these Preachers should preach different

Doctrines,

Doctrines, and that in the most important and fundamental Points; would you allow the Governors of the Church any Power to restrain them, or suspend them from their Office? Or must they wait till they proceed to open Blasphemy, and may be convicted before a Judge and Jury? If so, then all Sorts of pestilent Heresies may and will be taught in publick, without any Restraint. And I am humbly of Opinion, that it is much better to take proper Precaution beforehand, and more eligible, not to admit those into the Ministry who hold these pernicious Doctrines, than to to censure them for it afterwards---But Mosheim represents the Method here recommended to be the Case precisely with the Arminian Confession. But these Arminians are no national Church: they are, as the same Mosheim tells us, a Medley of Persons of different Principles, who, properly speaking, have no fixed stable Form or System of Doctrines. And yet these will not look on the Papists or the Calvinists, who deny their five Articles as Brethren. They also thought it necessary to draw up a Confession of their Faith, much larger than our Body of Articles. And † (as I observed before) in their Preface to this Confession, they answer the same Objections against such Confessions of Faith as are here revived by our Author.

I must beg Leave to pass by the following long-minded Periods of Declamation: I can find nothing in them but what has been already obviated; and I am tired with repeating the same Answers to the same Objections, cloathed in different Expressions.

I pass on to page 30, where our Author, in Answer to those who have urged that unscriptural Words might as well be used in Confessions of Faith as in Preaching, says, that the two Cases are widely different. I can see but little Difference in this Respect. They are both Explications of Scripture; and therefore in both other Words must be used besides Scripture. Nor does our Church claim any divine Authority; nor does she peremptorily decide Matters for us, or bind them upon us, as our Author misrepresents the Case. But whereas false Teachers had explained away the Sense of Scripture by new and unscriptural Distinctions, it was judged necessary to guard against their Evasions, and thereby exclude such false Teachers from our Ministry. If we were on this Account forced to make Use of new Terms, the Novelty is chargeable, not on us, but on them. Nor is this (as I have often already observed) any way inconsistent with the Assertion, that the Holy Scriptures contain all Doctrines required of Necessity for eternal Salvation †.

However, I cannot pass by one of his long-winded laboured Sentences, though I cannot easily fix his Meaning.---- * Were some Persons sensible of this (though I cannot make out from the Context what this is) they would not surely be so forward to suspect us of Hypocrisy and Prevarication, while we esteem ourselves bound to keep up all these Forms, till relieved by proper Authority; nor impute it wholly to our private Interest, when we ministerially comply with what we are not able to

† But we find the Tables now turned upon us. The Church is now charged with introducing unscriptural Terms and metaphysical Debates; whereas it was her Design to guard against the metaphysical Subtleties of vain Deceivers. And it may be, and often has been shewn, that those Things, which may now seem abstruse in our Credo's and Articles, were occasioned by the subtle Evasions of the Hereticks of those Days.

remove; and patiently remain in Posts, however invidiously represented, where it is conceived that we may do more good, and perform a more acceptable Service to our common Master, by continuing to labour on in his waste Vineyard, and wait his own good Time for Opportunities of using our little Influence [hereby prevented from growing still less] towards pruning a few wild Branches in it, and rooting out some of the rankest Weeds.--Be pleased, Sir, to come out of the Clouds. You have not yet thought fit to tell us who you are, nor what your Tenets are, nor what it is which you so much dislike in our Forms. I could wish in particular that you had been more explicit with regard to the Doctrine of the Trinity. This Doctrine has been lately abused in very rude and gross Terms. Permit me then to ask, Whether a Person, who disbelieves this Doctrine, can, without Hypocrisy and Prevarication, subscribe to the Article, which asserts, that in the Unity of the Godhead there be three Persons of one Substance, Power, and Eternity, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. But perhaps there may be some, who at first subscribed to these Articles as things of course; but are improved in Knowledge since. But have they never repeated their Subscription? and do they think think themselves at liberty to take upon them the Office of Teachers and Governors, in a Church whose fundamental Doctrines they disbelieve, and repeatedly declare their Assent to what they think false? Again, can Persons of these Principles esteem themselves bound, or even at Liberty, to keep up the Forms in our Creeds, and Liturgy? Can they, without Prevarication, repeat the Words of a Creed in a publick Congregation, if they do not believe the Contents of it? Can he who denies the Divinity of our Blessed Saviour, solemnly protest before God, and his Church, that he believes in our Lord Jesus Christ---very God of very God---being of one Substance with the Father? Can he, who disbelieves the Doctrine of a Trinity, declare it publickly to be his Belief, that the whole three Persons are co-eternal together, and co-equal? Nor can such a Man join in the Use of our Prayers. Can he, without Prevarication, invoke <sup>t</sup> the holy, blessed, and glorious Trinity, as three Persons, and one God? Can he address himself to <sup>v</sup> our Lord Jesus Christ, as one who liveth, and reigneth, with the Father, and the Holy Spirit, ever one God,

World without End? <sup>w</sup> Can he pray to God to keep him stedfast in the true Faith, to acknowledge the Glory of the eternal Trinity? Whether these are our Author's Principles I know not: that he differs from the established Church in some important Points, may, I think, fairly be gathered from his own Words. He speaks in the first Person, --We--- and he represents our Church as a waste Vineyard; and waits for an Opportunity of pruning the wild Branches in it, and rooting out some of it's rankest Weeds. But my Charge is not personal against him; but in general against all who thus prevaricate, who, I fear, are too many, and whose Cause our Author here pleads. And I must ask him what he means by that equivocating Expression of ministerially complying? --- Does he think that the Minister officiating in a publick Congregation speaks only like a Puppet, or like an Actor in a Play, who speaks not in his own Person, but that of another? Or does he esteem Creeeds and Publick Prayers to be only Matters of Form, * spoken not from the

* I fear that Confession will not be made with the Mouth unto Salvation, unless with the Heart Man believeth unto Righteousness. Rom. x. 10.

Heart, but only from the Mouth? Can he solemnly profess in his own Person, saying-- I believe-- before God, in his Church, and at his Altar, in the Face of the Congregation assembled for Divine Service, and yet believe nothing of what he professes his Belief of? Is he the Mouth of the Congregation? but surely he is one of the Congregation, and must be supposed to declare his own Faith, as well as that of others. If he does not declare his own Faith, pray who does? Again, if he solemnly addresses himself to God in Terms containing what he verily thinks to be a Falshood; if he prays to him as God, whom he believes to be no God, is there not a Lie in his Mouth? Does he not hereby deceive his Congregation, and mock God? But it seems that we comply, and patiently remain in Posts (yes, and patiently enjoy the Profits of those Posts, and patiently rise from one Post to another) that we may do more good, and perform a more acceptable

Such Dissimulation was held in Abhorrence by the Heathens themselves. When Euripides's Tragedy was acted on the Theatre at Athens, where Hippolytus says,--'Η γλῶσσι' ὁμῶμοσ' ἢ δὲ ἤρτι ἀπόμοτος--My Tongue has sworn, but not my Heart-- Secrates was so offended at this Prevarication, though only spoke by an Actor, out of a Play, that he left the Theatre.

Service to our Master---that is, in Scripture Language--- † Let us do Evil, that Good may come.--- What would this Writer himself think of a Jesuit, who should talk, and act thus? who should apply for Orders, take the Oath of Supremacy, subscribe our Articles, and declare his Assent to our Common Prayer; should take upon him the Office of a Priest in our Church, accept of Benefices, Dignities, and a Bishoprick and on every new Promotion repeat his Subscriptions and Declarations? Should such a Man officiate in our Church, and declare that he did this in order to do more good, and perform a more acceptable Service to his Master; that he continued to labour on in the waste Vineyard, and waited a good Time, and a proper Opportunity of pruning the wild Branches, and rooting out the rankest Weeds in the Vineyard; that is, in more plain English, of subverting our Establishment, and bringing us back to Popery. Would not our Author call this gross Hypocrisy and Prevarication? Justly he might without any invidious Misrepresentation. And yet this Man would have more to say for himself than those, whose Cause he pleads. He might say that it was his Principle that no † Rom. iii. 8.

Faith was to be kept with Hereticks, and that he had a Dispensation from the Pope, which quieted his Conscience. Nay, farther, a Popish Priest might more innocently officiate in our Churches, and join in our Creeds, and Liturgy, than a Socinian can.

* But our Author pleads the Example of our first Reformers: and so might our supposed Jesuit do with a better Grace. They, we are told, did not quit their Stations in the Church, but used all their Endeavours to amend it.---I am no way concerned to vindicate every Thing which these great and good Men did. It pleased God to bring about the Reformation by human Means. The first Reformers were Men, and subject to human Frailties. If they were guilty of any undue Compliances in King Henry the Eighth's Time, they had great Temptations to them. The King had begun a Reformation by denying the Pope's Supremacy. But he was a Prince of a high Spirit; and a zealous Assertor of all the other Errors of Popery. The Truth indeed is, these Reformers themselves were not weaned from these Errors but by Degrees. <sup>a</sup> Both Cranmer, and Ridley, held the Doctrine of Transubstantiation till the latter End of King Henry's Time. And therefore they might without Hypocrisy officiate in the Mafs. But they were not such ministerial Compliers, as is here represented. <sup>b</sup> When Cranmer was consecrated Archbishop of Canterbury, he scrupled taking the Oath to the Pope: and at last, by the Advice of some Canonists, before he took the Oath he made a publick Protestation, that he did not intend thereby to restrain himself from any thing that he was bound to, either by his Duty to God, or the King, or the Country: by which, says Dr. Burnet, if he did not wholly save his Integrity, yet it was plain he intended no Cheat, but to act fairly, and above-board. <sup>c</sup> When the six Popish Articles were established 1539, Shaxton Bishop of Salisbury, and Latimer Bishop of Worcester, resigned their Bishopricks, though the former indeed afterwards recanted, and was a Persecutor of the Protestants in Queen Mary's Time. Cranmer was protected by the King; and not only did not subscribe, but openly declared, and wrote against them. In Queen Mary's Reign it is well known what a glorious Stand these great Men made; and how far from any Compliance all of them were, excepting only one, who fell, and rose again to receive the Crown of Martyrdom. We may therefore, upon the whole, admire their Spirit, and applaud their Conduct. Be it our Care to avoid their Failings, and copy after their good Examples.

One of our Author's Associates seems to be convinced of the Iniquity of such ministerial Compliance. He has resigned his Preferment, and published an Apology for so doing. I really think he needed no Apology. I think he has acted an honest Part in giving up his Benefice, rather than officiate in a Service, which he could not join in without gross Hypocrisy. If he believed no Worship to be due to our Saviour, he was right not to offer up a Form of Prayer, wherein he is so often invoked, and addressed to, as God. But for the same Reason he cannot join in our Communion, nor attend our publick Worship. Nor can he join join himself to any Church in Christendom. Jesus Christ is worshipped in every Christian Church, and has been so in all Ages from the very first Propagation of Christianity to this Day. We cannot call this Gentleman either Arian, or Socinian: he outstrips both. Both Arius, and Socinus, held Worship to be due to Christ. <sup>d</sup> Nay, when Franciscus Davides, following only the necessary Consequences of Socinus's own Doctrine, denied the Worship of Christ, Socinus was greatly provoked, wrote against him with great Bitterness, and called him a Blasphemer, more than an Heretick, and unworthy the Name of a Christian. And this Davides was persecuted by the Socinians, and cast into Prison, where he died a miserable Death. And accordingly in the Racovian Catechism we find the Worship of Christ defended on the same Principles, as the Romanists defend the Worship of Saints, and Angels. <sup>e</sup> And to the Question---What think you of those who hold that Christ is not to be worshipped? The Answer is---I think they are by no means Christians.

Another of this Fraternity, not quite so honest, is now under Prosecution (I suppose it will be called Persecution) for publicly speaking, and preaching, against the Doctrines of our Church, calling her Articles profane, and her Worship idolatrous, and even the Apostle's Creed erroneous; altering the Liturgy, and leaving out such Parts of the Service, as he does not like. And yet this Man keeps his Benefice, to which he was lately instituted, when he subscribed our Articles, and declared them all to be agreeable to the Word of God, and solemnly in the Church promised to conform to our Liturgy, which he now in that very Church abuses in the grossest Terms. However extraordinary this may seem, I esteem him one Degree honestier than our ministerial Compliers: he acts fairly, and above board.

And these are the Men, who petition for Relief in Matters of Subscription. What would they have? and what will content them? Most of them have been backward to speak out. Our Author deals mostly in general Terms. But they have now, some of them at least, plainly spoken out. Nay

we are here told that they patiently remain in their Posts, and wait the Opportunity of pruning our wild Branches, and rooting out out rankest Weeds. Give them therefore the Relief they ask for, and they will overturn our Church, Root and Branch. Allow them the Liberty of Prophecyng, which they contend for, and all Sorts of Doctrines will be publicly taught in our Pulpits, and the most important Articles of our Religion openly vilified. But neither will this satisfy them. We must part with all our Creeds, even the Apostles Creed; we must abolish, or new modify our Liturgy, and in short give up our whole Establishment. And what End will be served by these Concessions? Will it promote either Peace, or Edification, if all Men of all Persuasions are allowed, and commissioned, to teach in our Churches whatever Doctrines they please? These Men (it seems) keep to Forms at present: but when relieved by proper Authority, they will soon fall to Work in our Vineyard, and root out all our rank Weeds. I fear, if we let these Weeders in, they will tear up the True Vine itself. But can these Weeds be rooted out, without stirring the Ground? What is it which makes them so earnest to root them out? A Zeal for Truth, I suppose. And would not others be as zealous to support what they call Truth? Would there not be many who would esteem, what they call rank Weeds, as the fairest Flowers in the Garden? Our Author may perhaps fancy that all but the conscientious Men of his own Way of thinking subscribe the Articles as Things of Course, and will subscribe any thing. But he will most certainly find himself mistaken. He will find the Bulk of the Clergy as zealous to maintain, and as able to defend, the Doctrines of our Church, as he is to oppose them. And many common Christians, I believe, will be greatly scandalized, if you take away their Cree ds, and Catechism, and strike out of the Liturgy such Things as they have always esteemed essential. Shall we gain any Dissenters by these comprehensive Schemes? I am afraid but few, and we may create more. New Sects of Dissenters will arise, who will be as much offended at our leaving out necessary things, as others are for enjoining things indifferent. If you abolish the Worship of our Blessed Saviour, I declare that I will be myself a Dissenter: nor will I join in Communion with any Church which

which does not in her publick Worship
call on the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ.--- Church did I say?---No, it is no Church--- the very Name implies the Worship of our LORD. But farther; would these Reformers agree among themselves? Those who deny the Divinity of our Blessed Saviour, as they would fiercely contend with those who hold this Doctrine, so they would differ from one another. † Some would maintain that he was a Second Jehovah; others that he was a mere Man. Some would tell us that they who worshipped not Christ were no
Christians; others would call this Worship idolatrous. This we see was warmly contested among the Socinians; and they abused, and persecuted, one another. And in the blessed Times of Oliver Cromwell, when the Church of England was subverted, the several Sectaries divided, and quarrelled among themselves. And how would the People be edified by this Freedom of Debate? The Pulpit would be made a Stage of Controversy:
and while the different Teachers were dis-

* 2 Cor. i. 2.

puting, and wrangling with one another on the most important Points, while one taught one Doctrine, and one another, and that with equal Authority, the People would not know what to believe ; and probably many of them would be of no Religion at all, while others would seek Refuge in Po-pery <sup>s</sup>.

But why may not Persons of different Persuasions be united by Charity, and mutual Forbearance ? And why may they not now under the present Establishment ? Why may not Persons of different Communions live in Peace, and Charity, as well as those of different Persuasions under the same Communion ? We bear no Malice, or Hatred, to those who differ from us, nor do we desire to persecute, or injure them. If they dislike the Terms of our Communion, we compell them not to come in : they may join themselves to any Conventicle they like best.

If they approve not the Doctrine of our Articles, they need not subscribe them. If after their Subscription they should change their Opinion, yet, if they keep their Opinion to themselves, no Man will, or can, hurt them. Instead of this, the Press teems with the bitterest Invectives against our Establishment in general : and the most essential Doctrines of our Church are treated with the greatest Asperity. If these warm Zealots were admitted into our Church, and suffered to teach what they would without Restraint, will they be more quiet than they are now ? I think it has been already shewn that such Comprehension would contribute neither to Charity, nor Peace, nor Edification.

<sup>b</sup> But I may be asked, perhaps, --- Are there no Faults in our present Constitution ? Is there nothing that I myself should be glad to see altered ? --- I shall speak my Mind fairly and freely. There are some things in our Articles, and Liturgy, which I should be glad to see amended (though, I believe, not the same as these Gentlemen would object to) in many other things I should be willing (though against my own Opinion) to make all reasonable Concessions, if by that Means we might obviate Objections, gain any considerable Number of Dissenters without making more, quiet weak Consciences, or promote Peace, and Unity, amongst Protestants. But when such bitter Invectives are published against our Church, as the Confessional, and several others of the same Stamp; when we are loaded with Reproaches; when the most fundamental Doctrines of Christianity are attacked, and Principles advanced, which are subversive of all Establishments, I fear there is little Room to hope for Peace, or Accommodation with such Men. And therefore I humbly think, with all due Submission to my Superiors in Church, and <sup>i</sup> This Writer seems to tread in the same Steps tho' --- non passibus æquis.—Witness his Conclusion, where our Church, and it's Government, are compared to the Jewish Church, and it's Rulers, in our Saviour's Time.—He had before compared it to the Tower of Babel. Strange it is that he should not see the Folly, the Injustice, the Indecency, of such invidious Comparisons. Sufficient it may be to answer that our Church teaches not for Doctrines the Commandments of Men: and that he has not wrought any Miracles, nor offered us any good Reasons for our Conviction.

State,

State, that we had better wait for more peaceable Times, and be contented with our present Constitution as it is, till a fairer Prospect shall appear of changing it for the better.

A D D E N D A.

WHEN I wrote these Papers, I had not seen Mr. Lindsay's Apology: I have since obtained a Sight of it. I find he renders the Text 1 Cor. i. 2. which I have cited above, p. 43.---with all them that are called by the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ---and refers us to Dr. Hammond for Proof. Dr. Hammond is a learned, and able, Commentator: but his Interpretation of this Text is sufficiently confuted by Dr. Whitby in his Annotations. One need indeed only turn to the Texts cited by Dr. Hammond. The Word---ἐπικαλούμενος---by itself indeed signifies called, or named. The four first Texts of Scripture produced by him amount to no more, as Matt. x. 3. Luke xxii. 3. Acts i. 23.--iv, 3.---Lebbæus, whose Surname
was

was Thaddæus--Judas surnamed Iscariot, &c. The next Text he cites proves directly against him. Acts vii. 58. the Word --- επικαλούμενον--there is plainly used, not in the Passive, but the Middle Voice, and signifies calling upon, or invoking--and is by the Doctor himself rendered--he continued in Prayer to God. But the same Verb--επικαλέομαι--- with an Accusative Case following it, always signifies calling upon in Prayer, or appealing to, as a Witness, or Judge. To call upon the Lord, or upon the Name of the Lord, is a common Phrase used in the Old Testament to signify the Worship of God: and is expressed in the Septuagint by the Verb--επικαλέομαι--- in the Middle Voice. Thus we read Gen. xii. 8. that Abraham built an Altar unto the Lord, and called upon the Name of the Lord--επεκαλέσατο ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματι Κυρίου. --- And so again xiii. 4. and xxi. 33. where 'tis expressed επεκαλέσατο τὸ ὄνομα Κυρίου. --- <sup>a</sup> Isaac also built an Altar, and called upon the Lord. <sup>b</sup> The same Phrase of calling upon

<sup>b</sup> 1 Kings xviii. 24. 1 Chron. xvi. 8. Psal. lxxix. 6. lxxx. 18. xcix. 6. cv. 1. cxvi. 4, 14. Is. lxiv. 7. Jer. x. 35. Lam. iii. 54. Joel ii. 32. Zach. xiii. 9.

the Name of the Lord is used in many other Places---Επικαλεῖσθαι τὸν Κυρίον-- οἱ --τον Θεον, &c. is also used in many Places in a Active Sense for the Worship of God. The same Phrase is used in the same Sense in many Places of the New Testament, and particularly in those cited by Dr. H. and so he himself acknowledges. So he does in his Paraphrase of Acts vii. 59. as we have already seen. In Acts ii. 21. St. Peter quotes the Prophecy of Joel ii. 3. and applies it to the Times of the Gospel--Πᾶσι οἱ ἄν ἐπικαλέσθαι τὸ ὄνομα Κυρίου σωθήσεται---Whosoever shall call on the Name of the Lord shall be saved. In the Prophet it plainly signifies the Worship of God: and therefore must signify the same in the Citation. The same Prophecy is also cited by St. Paul, Rom. x. 13. another Text produced by Dr. H. which proves directly against him. For St. Paul applies [this particularly to Christ. He was before speaking of Faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, v. 9, &c. and then adds, v. 12. The same Lord over all, is rich unto all that call upon him. Then follows this Quotation from Joel. And in the next Verse the Apostle adds--How shall they call on him, in whom they have not believed?--The Apostle is speaking of Christ. To call upon him is therefore something different from, and subsequent to, believing on him, and can scarce signify any thing else than worshipping him. And Dr. H. renders it---they shall constantly confess, pray, and adhere to Christ. The Verb here is certainly used in an Active Sense. There is one more Text cited by the Doctor: and that is Acts ix. 14. where Ananias says to the Lord, who appeared to him in a Vision.---Here he, viz. Saul, hath Authority from the Chief Priests to bind all that call on thy Name --- τὸς ἐπικαλεσμένους τὸ ὄνομα σου---which Dr. H. renders-- all that publicly avow the Worship of Christ--- and refers to the same Phrase Acts xxii. 16. which he renders joining with the Church in Performance of all Christian Duties of Devotion to God--It cannot indeed here, nor at V. 21. signify those who were called by the Name of Christ: ° for the Disciples were not called Christians till some time after at Antioch. And for the same Reason in the last cited Text Acts xxii. 16. where Ananias bids Saul arise, and be baptized, and wash

° Acts xi. 26.

away his Sins, calling on the Name of the Lord-- ἐπικαλεσαμενος τὸ ὄνομα τοῦ Κυρίου-- must signify in an Active Sense, worshipping the Lord. Again, they that call on the Lord out of a pure Heart-- is a Phrase used by St. Paul 2 Tim. ii. 22.
 to signify good Christians, a Phrase nearly synonymous to this 2 Cor. i. 2. The same Verb also--ἐπικαλεῖσθε-- is used 1 Pet. i. 17.
 in an Active Sense, to signify the Worship of God. In some other Places both of the Old, and New Testament, the Name of God is said to be called on Persons, or Things, devoted to his Service : but here the Phrase is different ; the Word--ὄνομα--is here a Nominative Case prefixed to the Verb. But where the Verb--ἐπικαλέομαι-- is followed by an Accusa- tive Case, it always signifies to invoke, or worship, excepting only where it signifies to appeal to. And if so, we want neither Pre- cept, nor Example, for the Worship of Christ.
